

Human Trafficking Creative Assignment
By Laura Dryjanska, PhD

Target: Graduate students of psychology course on Human Trafficking

Instructions:

This is an alternative to the Mid-Term Exam in order to respect different learning styles.

This assignment requires you to reply to the following five questions:

1. Within psychology, there are many different areas. One of the ways of identifying them and learning about them is by looking at different divisions of the American Psychological Association. Choose three divisions and provide an example for each of them of how a psychologist who is a member of that division can contribute to anti-trafficking efforts.
2. What is the Society for the Psychological Study of Social Issues (SPSSI) and how does its mission and history relate to anti-trafficking efforts?
3. What specifically has SPSSI done to support advocacy on prevention of human trafficking? Please describe the event in your own words and include a supporting material (a photo, quote, screenshot). You may find the following link helpful when looking for information:

4. What are some benefits of joining SPSSI as a student member? How these benefits can be related to fighting human trafficking? Consider your career stage and personal context as well as the larger international scenario.
5. Please discuss the underlying values of SPSSI initiatives. How do they relate to your value system as a Christian? Are there any areas of potential disagreement?

For each question above choose the format that you prefer among the following options:

- Word document
- Power Point Presentation
- Audio file
- Video file
- Entry on a blog or a social media platform that you use (please provide a link and a screenshot).

Please use at least two different formats altogether, for example submitting audio files that contain your replies to four questions and a video file that contains your reply to the remaining question. There are no page, slide or time limits, but be brief. These should not be lengthy responses.
