

The Society for the Psychological Study of Social Issues
Sound science, sound policy

The Society for the Psychological Study of Social Issues in conjunction with the Honorable James P. McGovern

presents a Congressional Lunch Seminar:

Toward LGBTQ Non-discrimination and Inclusivity: What We Know and What We Need

Tuesday, October 25, 12:00 – 1:15 pm
2168 Rayburn House Office Building (Gold Room)

Dr. Kim A. Case
Professor of Psychology
University of Houston-Clear Lake

Dr. Kevin Leo Yabut Nadal
Associate Professor of Psychology
John Jay College of Criminal Justice

Despite recent advances in policy and practice, people who identify as LGBTQ still face discrimination in a number of settings, including schools and workplaces. Discrimination against people who are LGBTQ-identified also plays into adverse outcomes related to physical and mental health, and violence and homelessness. In this seminar, Drs. Case and Nadal will provide an overview of what we know about discrimination against people who identify as LGBTQ, how such discrimination can put LGBTQ-identified individuals at particular risk, and how this knowledge might inform policy directions going forward.

This is a widely attended event. Lunch will be provided.

RSVP to Sarah Mancoll (smancoll@spssi.org) by Monday, October 24 to confirm your attendance.

SPSSI's LUNCH SEMINAR SERIES: PSYCHOLOGICAL INSIGHTS INTO LEGISLATIVE ISSUES

---

This series is designed to shed light on the psychological dimensions of currently debated policy issues. The seminars provide attendees with psychological data and insights to help inform the creation of scientific, empirically supported social policy solutions. Each seminar features prominent, nationally renowned psychological researchers with particular expertise on a topic of interest.